

GET PAID TO PLAY AND SLEEP ALONGSIDE PANDAS AS A FULL-TIME JOB

Summary: Have you ever wanted to work and sleep alongside Pandas and get paid for it? This can be your dream job so long as you read this article.

Working with Pandas has become a reality for many people across the world because of a program with the Giant Panda Protection and Research Center in China.

The job pays more than $30,000 per year, provides employees a free SUV for transportation and housing. To make things even better, those chosen for the job will be able to play with Pandas all day long and sometimes even sleep alongside them in their habitat.

The Giant Panda Protection and Research Center in the Sichuan Province of China hires full-time Panda caretakers each year. Those who want to work as Panda caretakers will need to be no younger than 22 and have the ability to write and take photos.

"Many people at our center do the same job, but the salary was never that high," said Heng Yi, who works in the PR department at the center. "But we want more people to pay attention to giant pandas' protection work and participate."

These employees will spend 365 days with the Pandas in an effort to be there during their ups and downs. This will help the employees analyze the Pandas and find ways to protect them in life.
