

JOBLESS CLAIMS DATA POINTS TO SLOWING IMPROVING JOB MARKET

This article says that unemployment benefit claims rose above 400,000, increasing from previous numbers that were released last week. Numbers seem to indicate that the market is slowly improving and in the process of adding jobs. It also suggests that inflation is steadily creeping higher for Americans, with gas being that main reason for the increase.

Read the original article here: Jobless data suggest improving employment market

<https://blog.granted.com/>