

EMPLOYMENT FOR DISABLED VETERANS

A health and wellness company, ValueOptions, is joining forces with Hero Health Hire, which is a group of companies that work to help disabled veterans find necessary employment.

The Hero Health Hire first started in Washington, D.C. and is composed of different companies that are willing to hire disabled veterans who are in need of employment. The companies that are part of the Hero Health Hire all work vigorously to ensure that disabled veterans will be able to find jobs.

The ValueOptions Company is a proud supporter of veterans and military members in general and has been providing for veterans and the military for more than two decades.

The President of ValueOptions, Heyward Donigan, spoke about joining forces with Hero Health Hire and says, "We are proud to be a part of Hero Health Hire." He also says, "Our veterans have made extraordinary sacrifices for their country, and deserve our utmost support here at home. We welcome the talents and experiences our 'heroes' bring to the health care industry."

Because of Hero Health Hire, hundreds and thousands of veterans are able to find jobs that otherwise may have been difficult for them to get. In fact, there are tons of military members who are wounded while serving the country each month. Once they become wounded while serving the country, they are sent back home where they will have to find a job that will allow them to support themselves and their family. This can often be a challenge for a veteran who has to make a transition from military life to regular civilian life.

The health care industry continues to grow and expand in the United States. There is a high demand and want for nurses, pharmacists, doctors, and other types of providers. This job field is particularly good for disabled veterans who are making the transition from military life to civilian life and are in need of employment.

The Hero Health Hire was first established in 2011. Its primary purpose is to help disabled veterans to use the skills they learned in the military and use them as a civilian in the workplace. The company strives at helping disabled veterans and former military members find and keep employment.

The Hero Health Hire made an announcement that Major General Elder Granger, M.D. will receive the title of honorary chairperson for Hero Health Hire. Granger was a member of the military for approximately 37 years. He will be working to help this program grow and expand. He will also be available to offer support to disabled veterans and military members who are in need of employment or assistance.

After the announcement was made, Granger said, "I am honored to join the Hero Health Hire initiative and help our nation's disabled veterans and all veterans find meaningful employment opportunities with America's leading health care businesses." He also said, "Hero Health Hire comes at a critical time for our veterans, and I look forward to working with these businesses to recruit more disabled veterans and assist them in their transition."