
BELLINGHAM HERALD CUTTING 30 MORE WASHINGTON STATE JOBS

The Bellingham Herald, which cut ten jobs in March, will cut 30 further positions, 25 of them at a press in Mount Vernon. Also, remaining employees will have to take a one-week unpaid furlough this summer. Last week, the newspaper sold its building in downtown Bellingham, Washington for $2.35 million. After the cuts, the Herald will employ 75 people. The newspaper is owned by McClatchy of Sacramento, California.
