
USA TODAY AND USA WEEKEND CUT 37 JOBS

Publishing giant Gannett Co., owner of USA Today and the weekend magazine USA Weekend announced that the two publications would cut a combined 37 jobs. In a year that has been hard on the print media overall, things have been particularly rough on USA Today. The newspaper sells a large percentage of its papers in airports and hotels and declines in travel have cut into its circulation. Coupled with an overall decline in advertising revenue, this has led to rounds of layoffs and other price cuts.
