
OKLAHOMA CITY TO SEE NEW JOBS

Cellu Tissue is moving into a former Lucent building in Oklahoma City's west side. The move is believed to put the building only at around 25% occupancy, but considering the building has been empty for several years, it's a positive sign. The move is being seen locally as a sign of economic improvement. It is unknown just how many jobs will be created, but given the economic climate, all will be welcome. "It's wonderful when you see a facility that's been idle for some time have jobs come back on site," says Robin Roberts Krieger. The plant is scheduled to open in June of this year.
