
SECURE CHECK CREATES NEW SALES POSITION

Secure Check, a leader in the area of automated return check processing, has announced a new sales representative position designed to 'meet the needs of moms.' The company says they recognize the tremendous daily contribution mothers make to their households. "In this trying economy we recognize the need for many families to supplement their income," said CEO of Secure Check Pat Forbes. "Many households have faced unemployment, salary reductions and salary freezes while their expenses continue to rise. Secure Check is dedicated to helping families grow and maintain their standard of living, and values the talents of moms across the United States both personally and professionally."
