

---

NO STIMULUS THIS YEAR FOR US ECONOMY

This time even though there is more unemployment, slower growth as indicated by economic parameters and a confirmed double dip for the real estate market, there will be no economic stimulus measures by the government to help the economy bounce back. But if the economy worsens, then the policymakers can consider buying another round of bonds in order to force some cash into the market.

Read the original article here:

Don't count on stimulus. It's not coming

<https://blog.granted.com/>