

---

MULTI-CITY TRAINING INITIATIVE IS LAUNCHED BY NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION TO TRAIN PEOPLE FOR GREEN JOBS

With the help of an $8 million Department of Labor grant, the nonprofit organization Jobs for the Future (JFF) is implementing the new GreenWays Initiative and doing green job training in construction, automotive technology, utilities and manufacturing in the following major cities: Boston (automotive specialty technicians, or ASTs) Chicago (computer numerical control, or CNC machinists), Detroit (energy efficient housing, green construction), Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Seattle and Washington, D.C.

Read the original article here:

Non-profit launches multi-city training initiative for green jobs

<https://blog.granted.com/>