
STATES HEADED FOR TOUGH BUDGET BATTLES

This article is dealing about the difficulties faced by the leaders of some of the state government in framing the budget for the next fiscal year 2012, due to the shortfalls of the states like Iowa, Minnesota and Massachusetts, which roughly crossed $103 billions. The main reason for this condition is that the states are still at the pre-recession level. Read the original article here: It's D-day for state budgets

<https://blog.granted.com/>