
UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS LOOKED FOR BY AN INCREASED NUMBER OF PEOPLE LAST WEEK

It is very sad that the recession is still not over and the people are suffering from unemployment. More companies have cut jobs sharply and the consumers find it difficult to spend due to "stagnant wages" and increasing gas prices. All these factors have prompted more people to seek unemployment benefits to make their ends meet. More than 400,000 people have applied for unemployment benefits for 15 weeks in a row, reports Aol Jobs. Read the full article here: More People Sought Unemployment Benefits Last Week
