

INITIAL JOBLESS CLAIMS FALL

Initial jobless claims fell slightly last week, but they are still at a high level. This means that the labor market has not really improved. The total number of claims were 409,000 for the week ending in Aug. 27, a decrease of just 12,000 from the previous week. Read the original article here: Jobless Claims Fall, but Still Elevated

<https://blog.granted.com/>