
THE 4 DAY WORKWEEK IS NOW BEING ENDED FOR UTAH STATE WORKERS

With states raising taxes on a variety of products, raising fees for services and cutting budgets, Utah's attempt to institute a new 4-day/10-hour work week for state workers, started under former governor and now presidential candidate John Huntsman, has apparently not resulted in the hoped-for savings, and the state is ending the program. In other developments, all of Utah's profitable state-run liquor stores are to stay open.

Read the original article here: <http://jobs.aol.com/articles/2011/09/15/utah-pulls-the-plug-on-the-four-day-workweek/>

<https://blog.granted.com/>