
BIG CHALLENGES POSED BY UNEMPLOYMENT

The epidemic of unemployment is the topic of this article. This trend of unemployment has spread all over the world, and it never before has had such a global reach. Whether one is educated or qualified is no longer a factor. The article paints a grim picture of the future to come, and the trend shows no signs of changing anytime soon. Those who contributed to the article are some of the leading in their fields, and no one is hopeful. The aging workforce, combined with so many young people that are pursuing education and a dismal world economy are all major factors, as well as a lack of focus on vocational education. There is a sore lack of specialized skills training, and because of that, certain fields are dying out, eliminating jobs. Not to mention technology and computers are replacing people in droves. This steady decline in jobs filled can be attributed directly to less focus on vocational education. Read the full article here: Unemployment poses big challenge
