

FIRST-JOB FEARS: REAL-LIFE ADVICE FOR THOSE STARTING OUT - HUFFINGTON POST (BLOG)

Finding your first job as a teenager can be more difficult and frightening than ever in this unstable job market. Editor Elizabeth Kuster of the Huffington Post writes about her personal experiences trying to find entry level work as a teenager - a pursuit that was "helped" along by her proactive mother. A tale of frustration with her mother ultimately turns to satisfaction about her job experience.

Read the full article here:

First-Job Fears: Real-Life Advice For Those Starting Out - Huffington Post \(blog\)

<https://blog.granted.com/>