

MINIMUM WAGE JOBS ON THE DECLINE

The number of people working jobs that paid the federal minimum wage dropped last year, according to new labor statistics published Wednesday. Just under 60% of all U.S. workers are paid hourly, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. An estimated 4.7% of those hourly workers make minimum wage or less, down from 5.2%, a year earlier.

Read the full article here:

Minimum wage jobs on the decline

<https://blog.granted.com/>