

RAIN SOAKS JERSEY SHORE ON MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND AS REBUILDING CONTINUES

It's heartening to note that seven months after the devastating Sandy storm wreaked havoc, including along the Manasquan beachfront, things are getting better and better now. However, weather is going to prove the crucial factor as shore towns keep their fingers crossed in search of a strong summer season. Only a bright summer can help them retrieve at least a portion of what they lost to the deadly storm. For more details on the article Click Here

<https://blog.granted.com/>