DOUBLE-DIP RECESSION IN BRITAIN REVISED AWAY

Against recent predictions, economists now state that the United Kingdom did not undergo a dreaded "double-dip" recession recently. A revision of economic data revealed that although the UK did not undergo two recessions, its overall economic situation remains depressing. Rather than undergo a contraction (as is required of a recession), the UK's economy has merely stayed completely flat for several consecutive quarters. This still does not meet the growth that the country truly needs to maintain its economy. For more details on the article Click Here Looking for a better job opportunity?
