

---

SPEND TIME ON GRANTED BROWSING AVAILABLE JOBS

Grant yourself permission to succeed!

Searching for a new job takes a lot of time and effort. It does not have to become a drawn out process that lasts months on end if you use the right job board. We have always found Granted to be one of, if not the best, job board available today. It is completely free to use, which means that you will never be charged anything for submitting applications. The more time you spend each day on the site, the more likely it is that you will come across a job that interests you. Even if you just spend 20 or so minutes per night on the site, your chances of finding a job that matches your experience increase greatly. An excellent piece of advice for a job search is to take notes along the way. Even if you bookmark the available jobs that interest you, still take notes. Mark down the name of the company, the title, the requirements, the salary (if mentioned) and any other important pieces of information. This will help you recall the job easier and help you make a decision about applying for that job. Over at Granted, the site posts thousands of new jobs each week all across the country. You can even search for open jobs in foreign countries if you want to work outside of the country.

<https://blog.granted.com/>