

PRESENTING YOURSELF AND HANDLING YOUR STRESS

Your initial phone call to a potential employer can often mean the difference between getting an interview and being overlooked as a candidate for a job. Whenever your first contact with an employer is by telephone, always be sure to be courteous to whoever answers the phone. Support staffs are often the people who decide whether calls should be put through, and in today's leaner, customer-service-oriented companies, it is not uncommon for supervisors themselves to answer the phone.
