

MENTORING SHORTENS YOUR LEARNING CURVE

Joining in the multitudes of the newbies you will only secure information that will help you with a mentor that cares. Take the time to find and learn as much as you can from them. Wonderful shortcuts will entail your learning curve to shorten and you will be off to the races faster and farther. Get the mentoring you need and get even, you want to succeed then come off the steps and play with the big boys. My mentor says this often and he means it when you are ready to make the money then take the bit in your teeth and proceed at lightning speed.

Making money online will lead you to getting the tools you need to organize yourself and get your site ready for the traffic you will send to it. Don't get lost in the superhighway of the web you will have to do lots of things to get yourself and your site branded. Just putting up a website and forgetting the advertising and promotion will not bring your customers. Starting out with a business on a shoe string will only make you more aware that you will need to track your ads and use the money wisely to promote your site with excellent advertising.

When you are helping your down line it is only making you stronger in the fact that you will become an instructor and mentor for your people. Investing time in your people is a plus any way you look at it. If training is in place when you get done then you will have branded yourself as a teacher and they will come to you with problems and you will be able to keep them focused on what they will need to do. Giving a hundred percent of your sincerity will allow you to maintain creditability with your new people as well.

Taking notes and putting into action the many things that your mentor will give you will only make you a better marketer and a better mentor for your down line. If you put tactics that are given to you and use them faithfully then it will be so much easier to help your people use the same skills in developing them into great and useful new mentors of the future. Everyone wants to do well and with the right inspiration and training it is in reach of everyone.

Marketing is a good option of word of mouth advertising, its okay to tell others if you are doing well. There are many ways to do that hand out those business cards they are not going to do you any good collecting dust on your shelf. Put them on a bulletin board with a pocket on the bottom of the flyer you post on cork boards in your favorite places to shop. Let your people know what is working for you, if they are starting out with business on a shoe string they will need these options to get started before they make serious money. Remember positive thinking and great motivation comes to you from your mentor pass it on to your people then they will thrive like the weeds in your garden. We want the roses to bloom and manage to make the money they would like to on this great big web of opportunity.
