
CONNECTICUT GOVERNOR MALLOY WARNS OF MAJOR LAYOFFS IF UNIONS REJECT DEAL

Most of the Connecticut state employees are not satisfied with the $1.6 billion union deal reached with the state. This is clearly visible through many blogs posted across by various state employees and the Gov. Dannel P. Malloy is not happy with it. He has strongly ruled out the early retirement incentive plan, much interested by the employees and also clearly stated that there will be widespread layoffs, if the employees fail to ratify the deal.
