WORKING IN $100000 JOBS ONLY

Usually people rise to the ladder of CEOs, or perfect in their field of work through experience and then reach the level where their income is $100000. But this entails the need for years of experience and knowledge gathering. For those who want $100000 jobs only, there is a way too.

The ground work needs to be laid perfectly, that's the secret. Firstly you have to be motivated enough to be determined that you want a job that would pay you this amount or more.

Then you need to do an extensive study on the internet or from other books, guides, CDs etc about the fields that offer you such income opportunities. There would be several of them- being engineers, being in various branches of medical practices, psychologists, web masters, lawyers, corporate executives, architects etc. You need to choose a field that is compatible with your interests.

Now, list all the companies or organizations within your own interest area which would pay you that amount. Then you need to figure out what kind of qualifications are they looking for. Because you have to be the perfect choice for the $100000 job opportunity. For this you have to be all that they want and have listed in the qualification criteria.

Now geographically locate the jobs that would be feasible for you as well as that would pay you more. Some cities or states pay more than others.

Now evaluate your own educational qualification. How suitable is it for the job? If you think you need more, you should join college any take up the course that the job you are aiming at demands. If some job is going to pay $100K then it would demand special training and skills. If you are pre planning while you are still in Grad school or college, it's even better, then you can finish all the study that you have to do, all the specialization the job requires and then finally when you are ready, apply for it.

There are real people who have achieved this status. You could read their blogs and books and articles that they write and post on the websites, to know better about it.

Preparing the resume is also very important. It should be very organized highlighting on all that you have achieved in the academics and depicting all your skills. Make sure you emphasize on your unique selling proposition, why they should hire you and only you.

With everything it is important to remember that working in $100000 jobs is not a cake walk. It takes a lot of hard work, dedication, perseverance, competency, intellectual capacity, creativity etc to achieve success in and remain with $100000 jobs.
