

---

HOW TO PLAN FOR YOUR CAREER RATIONALLY

So the best thing to do would be to get it right on the first shot. You need to make a plan which includes the following steps if you want the right career for you. • Find out what you like and dislike Sometimes the main reason why people change careers is because of dissatisfaction. They want careers which satisfy them a lot more. Now this happens because they aren't making much money with the current job that they have or they are not fond of the company where they are working or they don't like the boss they work for. So you need to assess what you like and dislike before you make the decisions. You need to find a career which is motivating for you or else you won't be able to reach your goal. When you try and find this out, try to think of the things you like doing, subjects you like studying and so on. This way you can plan for your career. • Try and see if you would like to go for new career opportunities Once you've found out what exactly it is that you are passionate about then you need to find the different types of careers which are available to you. These days there are various new careers you can take up and you will be able to find out about all of these online. You can also ask professionals in the industry about career options. They are the ones who will be able to guide you the best. • Training for the career and education If you don't have all the necessary skills which are required for the job then you need to acquire them. This can be done by the help of various training programs which are available. You can even check out colleges and schools to see if they provide any programs like the one you are looking for. But when you are making career plans you have to make sure that you are flexible. You will not always get what you want. So you should have an open mind and you should be ready to go into some other line.

<https://blog.granted.com/>