

WHAT KIND OF EMPLOYEE ARE YOU?

Summary: Employees that are seen as valuable will have the best chances of success. Turn yourself into a great employee worth keeping around.

There are average employees and great employees. Which employee you are will play a big role in how you progress in the company. Leadership, initiative, flexibility, attitude and motivation play a big part for an employee to stand out as great.

Good employees are not necessarily bad employees. They will get the job done in a timely manner and will perform tasks assigned to them, but doing more makes a great employee valuable. Make yourself a valuable employee by understanding the differences and making changes to your everyday activities.

Good employees:

- come to work just to collect a paycheck
- have no desire to learn new things
- don't read
- resist change
- don't plan
- blame or justify their actions
- are only motivated out of fear
- have poor health habits
- don't contribute new ideas
- enjoy wasting time
- are poor teammates
- are a drag to be around

Great employees

- love doing great work
- are constant learners
- read regularly
- embrace change
- plan for success
- take responsibility of their actions
- are motivated by a sense of excellence
- have great health habits
- are idea machines
- hate wasting time
- are great team members
- are fun to be around

Read these related articles to learn more:

- Six Traits of an Exceptional Employee
- 4 Things to Do Every Day to Stand Out in a Crowd of Employees

Photo: business-cafe.org