Overview: Political Science 2304 is designed to familiarize you with some of the concepts, content, and methods of analysis currently used in political science and other social science disciplines. The goal of this course is for you to improve your reading, thinking, and writing about political science. Specifically oriented toward lower division political science majors, this course can also be a useful elective for students interested in politics and the foundations for political analysis. Its content will include a global view of political beliefs, ideologies, and systems as well as a specific view of public problems, political institutions, and policymaking in the United States. The following texts are required:

James E. Anderson, 2006, Public Policymaking: An Introduction, Sixth Edition, and
James N. Duziger, 2007, Understanding the Political World: A Comparative Introduction to Political Science, Eighth Edition.

Class Participation: Class participation is important to active learning. The format of the class will be largely lectures, but there will be daily opportunities for questions and for class discussions. Your abilities to read and think critically can be improved by diligently reading the assignments and reflecting upon them. Your active listening and talking can also improve these abilities. Some class time will be scheduled to review, clarify, and expand on topics raised by the students based on their reading and class lectures.

Academic Honesty: Students are expected to do their own work and to avoid cheating and plagiarism. Plagiarism is the appropriation of another's work or idea and incorporating that work as your own without acknowledging the source. Penalties for cheating or plagiarism may include failure of the course or lowering of a course grade.

Examinations: There will be four written examinations during the semester: three fifty-minute exams and a two-hour final exam. These are essay exams and will consist of term definitions and short answers. Examination questions will be drawn from assigned readings and from lectures.

Research Assignment: Students will prepare a one-page report of their research in the library and/or on the Internet concerning some political topic.

1. Your assignment for Friday, October 20, is to research a political topic in the library OR on the Internet. The topic should concern government politics—either at the local, state, national, or international level. There are a lot of impressive options available, but your source for this assignment should be authoritative. Consequently, limit your source for this assignment to one of just the following sources:

Dear Mr Glynn,

Re: Transfer to Secondary School, September 2011 – (Full Name of Pupil)

I/we am/are writing to appeal against the recent decision of Barnet Council (or other Local Authority) not to offer my/our son/daughter (name of pupil) a place at Hasmorean High School and instead to offer him/her a place at (name of school offered).

As you know, we are an orthodox Jewish family practising Judaism fully in accordance with the Ethos of the School and therefore feel that Hasmorean High School is the only appropriate state school in the area for (name of pupil). We have made no alternative arrangements for his/her education and clearly do not consider (name of school offered) as alternative or appropriate school for our son/daughter.

We hope that you will reconsider the decision and be able to offer (name of pupil) a place to study at Hasmorean in September, otherwise we will have to resort to the formal Appeals Procedure.

Yours sincerely,

The topic of my paper was "Title IX and Its Effects on Women's Athletics." I chose this subject because I have loved to play sports all my life, and I wondered why girls stop playing sports the older they get. I also wondered if there were things that could keep girls involved in sports as they get older. After I learned about Title IX, and how it required that women get the same opportunities as men to receive equal facilities and coaching and scholarships, I felt that I would focus on a project that would encourage more girls to play sports, or at least be more physically active. After doing some research, I decided to build a sand volleyball court at the Statesville Boys and Girls Club.

I was surprised that even though most people think that Title IX was about women in sports, it actually was a much broader law about equal opportunity for women in general. Women used this law to ensure their employment and that they would be treated fairly in their jobs. I now know how to use this law if I thought that I was being treated unfairly versus another male employee at my job. For instance, if I were scheduled to work less hours than a male employee that I have been there longer than, and I have the same qualifications as, I could cite Title IX to my boss. Further, I never knew that women were being discriminated against in sports when they attend college. So, now I know that, if offered money for an athletic scholarship, I
