What Makes an Adsense Site?

It is important to note that Google does not publish any criteria regarding the type of web sites which they accept for their adsense program. This means that there are simply no answers as to what you have to do with your site in order to qualify. But there are general principles that may be employed like for instance in terms of contents as long as they don't violate adsense program policies may be able to qualify for the program.

Another thing Google also doesn't want to support websites that have zero or near zero content value. This simply implies that adsense web sites are those sites that are rich in contents. There are actually two very good reasons why web sites are supposed to contain a great amount of contents and these are as follows:

1. Google makes use of content assessment algorithm which is a type of software that evaluates what a site is all about. If you want for Google to accurately evaluate your site you need to have a theme. And in support of your web site's theme you need to have contents that are geared in support of your web site's theme.

2. Another important thing to remember is that Google would never want to be associated with a website that contains very little contents in them. This is also the reason why you need to regularly update the contents of your site.

How Adsense works for your Site?

The idea behind adsense is not really that complicated. All that it needs is for the publisher or the webmaster to insert a java script into a particular web site. The java script is activated every time a web page is accessed and an advertisement is pulled from the adsense program.

The best thing about the adsense program is the fact that all the displayed advertisements on the web site are designed to suit the content as well as the theme of the site giving way to a subtle method of promotion.
