

AIRPLANE! ACTOR AND DIRECTOR CAPTURE VIOLENT SIDE OF WISCONSIN TOURISM

Airplane director David Zucker is taking his second stab at tourism advertising for his home state of Wisconsin. And after a rather lackluster first effort, this time he's brought in reinforcements in the form of actor Robert Hays, who played the lead role of Ted Striker in the iconically silly 1980 comedy. The comedy is as broad as it gets. Hays's voiceover yells and grunts are so cartoony as to be borderline insufferable.

Read the full article here:

Airplane! Actor and Director Capture Violent Side of Wisconsin Tourism

<https://blog.granted.com/>