

PRIVATISATION DESTROYING JOBS, SERVICES - REPORT

The rising costs of living, especially climbing electrical costs, will likely help determine the outcome of the September federal election. The two parties blame each other for the costs. Liberal opposition leader Tony Abbott blames the carbon price, whereas Prime Minister Julia Gillard has blamed the state governments for inefficiencies. Both Labor and Liberal parties have been promising lower energy prices for years, but the price of electricity has risen 170% from March 1995 to 2012.
