
WHAT MAKES ADVERTISINGCROSSING SO SPECIAL?

We are so glad that you asked that question because we have an answer for you. AdvertisingCrossing is one of the best sources online today for advertising jobs because it brings everything together in one spot. What does this mean? Well, for starters, you will not find such a large collection of jobs from across the country on any other site, period. At the site, jobs are brought in from multiple sources, not just one source. Jobs are pulled from employers, job site postings, recruiter postings, government jobs, newspaper sites and public interest sites. When you visit other job boards, or newspaper sites, you will see jobs posted solely there. The staff at AdvertisingCrossing spends their days sifting through thousands of job websites looking for open jobs in advertising. They then call the companies to make sure that those jobs are still available. Then, if the jobs are still open, the staff will post them to the board for all the public to see. Make sure you bookmark the site on your favorite browser so you can easily access it each day that you search for a job. You will find that a job search is easier when you use only one source for it.
