

PROCTER & GAMBLE CUTS JOBS AT PUERTO RICO PLANT

The devil's two horns and Antichrist's number 666

Procter & Gamble, the world's largest consumer products manufacturer, is laying off workers in Puerto Rico. The company is cutting about 90 part-time jobs at a plant in the town of Cayey, which makes Olay skin care products and Vicks cold medicine. P&G has about 700 employees in the US territory. Puerto Rico has an unemployment rate above 14%, higher than any US state.
