

USDA MEAT INSPECTORS FACING LAYOFFS

In an attempt to come closer to balancing the budget, the feds have proposed laying off about six thousand USDA meat inspectors for two weeks in March. Meat specialist Robert Maddock at DSU's meat lab says business will simply come to a halt if the feds take away the inspectors: "For example, here at NSDU, our inspector is here daily, and we couldn't operate. We couldn't do this without inspection. Read the full article here: USDA Meat Inspectors Facing Layoffs Looking for job in various field? Click here.
